Khrush Says Berlin Talks Will Be Held
Speech Most Mollifying In Weeks

STALINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (AP)—Premier Khrushchev said Sunday "there should be negotiations and there will be negotiations" to settle the Berlin and German problems peacefully.

Acknowledging that a nuclear attack would deal a heavy blow to the Soviet Union, he said, "We should use all opportunities for talks and adopt such measures as will avert war."

"Encouraging rays of hope have appeared" that Western leaders are coming around to his view that the disagreements can be settled by negotiation, Khrushchev told a crowd of 35,000 or more at the Volga River town of Volgzhsk, near Stalingrad.

He spoke at the commissioning of a hydroelectric project that the Soviets call the world's largest power plant. The plant's 22 turbines are designed to produce more than 2.5-million kilowatts, about double the capacity of Hoover Dam.

Khrushchev dedicated the plant with an appeal that the people who built it would not see it destroyed through another war.

President Kennedy and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain have taken a stand for negotiation, he said, and now French President Charles de Gaulle and West German Chancellor

Conrad Adenauer have come around to this position.

Khrushchev's speech in a way was his most mollifying in recent weeks.

The premier said he wants to be friends with the American, British, French, Italian and German peoples.

"Our people understand that they should not live in the past but in the future," he said. "So we should conclude a peace treaty (which he proposes to do with Communist East Germany) and look bravely forward."

His prediction that there will be East-West negotiations was cheered roundly by his audience, which was full of veterans of the World War II battle of Stalingrad.

However, a news conference statement by President de Gaulle last week that war would mean the utmost destruction in Soviet Union was the basis for a reiterated warning that West Germany, France and Britain would be destroyed.

"If those forces that are continuing to forge weapons of war should unleash a military conflict—and war can only be unleashed by imperialists, anti-Communists and colonizers, it all amounts to the same thing—then they will perish in the war," Khrushchev said.

Local-Level GM Strikes Loom Today

Issues Unsettled At Scores Of Plants On Eve Of Deadline

DETROIT (AP)—Chances of reaching strike-preventing local-level agreements by 10 a.m. Monday at all 130 General Motors plants were described Sunday by the company's chief contract negotiator as "pretty remote."

GM locals have the authority to strike if they have no working agreement by 10 a.m. Monday.

Louis G. Seaton, GM vice president, told newsmen that local-level settlement by the strike deadline "is an impossibility, unless somebody turns the switch."

He obviously referred to switch-throwing by the United Auto Workers union.

Asked to name some of 13,847 local-level demands still at issue, Seaton replied, "Well, at some places they are still demanding canopies from the parking lot to the plant."

Around-The-Clock Talks

Union negotiators had sandwiches and coffee at a brief 2 p.m. break. Seaton said company negotiators would return "pretty quick" to what appeared would be around-the-clock bargaining to the deadline. He said the first four hours Sunday were spent on local problems, taken up one by one.

The UAW reminded its GM locals Saturday of their authority to strike. Seaton labeled this an open invitation for local-level walkouts, despite GM and UAW agreement on a national wage package.

25 Settlements Reported

Seaton told newsmen there were 18 overnight local settlements, bringing the total to 25.

"There are sure to be several in the course of the day and more tonight," he said, and then added pessimistically: "When you put these up against a total of 130, the chances of getting a settlement by tomorrow morning are pretty remote."

The national economic wage package, termed as "very liberal" by UAW President Walter P. Reuther, was made contingent upon local-level agreements and a national settlement on non-economic issues.

GOP Senators Oppose Aid Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Republicans generally will support a move to restore House cuts in President Kennedy's emergency fund and foreign military outlays, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., said Sunday.

Dirksen, the Senate minority leader, said he has become convinced after discussing the matter with Kennedy that the President ought to have the full $300 million in contingent funds Congress previously authorized.

In passing a $3.66-billion foreign aid money bill last week, the House chopped $125 million off the $300 million Congress previously had voted to authorize for the emergency fund. This was part of the $600 million in cuts below the over-all $4.25 billion of authorization legislation passed the previous week.

"In times like these the President must have flexibility of action," Dirksen said. "He cannot wait for the legislative wheels to turn when a crisis arises."

Arab Troops Arrive

KUWAIT (AP)—The first troops of the Arab force that are to replace British soldiers guarding Kuwait arrived Sunday. The vanguard was a company of 80 Saudi Arabians.

Miss America Credits Victory To "Bit Of Ham"

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)—Hazel-eyed Maria Beal Fletcher Sunday credited her Miss America victory Saturday night to a "little bit of ham" she learned from her show business parents and practiced herself as a high-kicking professional chorus girl.

But the stunning 19-year-old North Carolinian confessed to reporters that "when I woke up this morning, I didn't know whether I was dreaming or not" and went out for a newspaper just to make sure her 1962 crown—and the lucrative cash rewards that go with it—were real.

Maria will sleep Sunday night in a New York Park Avenue hotel.

Soviet Explodes Largest Bomb Of Test Series

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Russia set off a nuclear device with a yield of "several megatons" over the arctic early Sunday, the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission reported.

It was the fifth — and by far the largest — of the bombs set off in the atmosphere by the Russians since they resumed weapons tests just over a week ago.

The AEC said the test was conducted over an arctic island that the Soviets have used for heavier yield tests in the past.

The AEC announcement said: "The Soviet Union conducted an atomic atmospheric nuclear explosion early Sunday. The detonation took place in the arctic region in the vicinity of Novaya Zemlya and the yield was on the order of several megatons."

A megaton is the explosive equivalent of a million tons of TNT.

Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev has threatened to build bombs of up to 100 megatons, and more recently has indicated that Russian scientists would explode devices designed to set off such super weapons.

The Atomic Energy Commission declined to comment on whether a bomb of the size exploded Sunday might be used as such a trigger.

"Secret Army" Blamed For Plot To Kill De Gaulle

PARIS (UPI)—Interior Minister Roger Frey announced Sunday that France's illegal "secret army" was behind the plot to assassinate President Charles de Gaulle with 22 pounds of high-powered plastic explosive and a liquid resembling napalm.

Frey also announced the arrest of a Colonel Bliquis (no first name) in connection with the plot and said papers in the officer's house indicated that he was chief of staff of the Secret Army Organization in France.

De Gaulle escaped unhurt Friday night when the explosives failed to explode properly.

The Secret Army Organization (OAS) is linked closely with French settlers and officers in Algeria who want the North African territory to remain French.

Dillon Says Deficit May Reach $6 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government's deficit may run to $6 billion by June 30, but the administration will seek no new taxes unless international relations worsen, Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon said Sunday.

Dillon hiked earlier administration estimates of the deficit, acknowledging that Congress would not enact the $740-million postal rate increase which President Kennedy had asked.

The secretary's statement, recorded earlier for a television broadcast, apparently did not take into account revival of some prospect for a smaller postal increase.

The House Post Office Committee Thursday approved a bill that would increase revenues by about $500 million a year. But only part of this increase, if voted, would come in the current fiscal year.

83 Persons Perish As Airliner Plunges In Shannon Estuary

Six U.S. Crewmen, 77 Europeans Die

SHANNON, Ireland (AP)—Rescue workers dug in Shannon River estuary mudbanks Sunday to recover victims of the worst disaster ever to befall a U.S. commercial plane abroad.

Eighty-three persons — 77 of them European farmers and their families en route for a tour of the American Cornbelt — and a six-member U.S. crew perished. A chartered DC6 of President Air Lines crashed into the Shannon's swirling tides shortly after taking off before dawn on New York.

First reports erroneously identified the passengers as American Army personnel, their wives and children flying home from Germany. The error arose because a chartered plane carrying the Americans had been called for take-off at the same time.

Sixty-five Germans and handful of Swiss, Dutch and Austrians were the passengers of the ill-fated flight. All aboard, including one infant, died in a horror of muck and tangled wreckage.

Working at times knee-deep in mud, rescue workers recovered 63 bodies before the incoming tide lapped over most of the wreckage and interrupted operations late Sunday.

The Red Cross, in reporting this total, said one of the bodies was discovered washed ashore at Killy Dysart, six miles from Shannon.

The DC6 had been chartered from President Air Lines, a charter firm based at Burbank, Calif., by Mannesmann-Regner, a German company that builds farm spraying equipment, to carry the Europeans to Chicago. The big four-engine plane took off Saturday night from Duesseldorf, West Germany. Shannon was a refueling stop.

The passengers had planned a three-week visit to the United States, paid for out of their own pockets, for sight-seeing and studying American farming methods.

Paar Denies He Asked For Tanks, Troops In Berlin

BERLIN (UPI)—Jack Paar said Sunday he did not ask the U.S. Army to send armed troops and tanks to the East-West Berlin border for the filming of a show for his television program. Paar said in a telephone interview that reports he had asked the Army to do so were "completely untrue."

He said he had cabled his account of the controversial affair to Sen. Jacob Javits (R-N.Y.) and Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary.

The Defense Department announced Saturday the Army has relieved one officer of his duties and admonished another as a result of its investigation of the circumstances surrounding the filming of a Paar television show on the Berlin border Thursday.

But, the report continued, if Moscow becomes convinced that this nation might be expected to strike with atomic power "a substantial deterrence will have been established" against the Reds' Berlin take-over plans.

The Berlin problem was mentioned in a 62-page document on the general question of "where we stand on national defense." It was prepared for NPA's international committee by Franklin A. Lindsay, who has served on the Gaither Committee and other groups which have studied U.S. defense needs.

Iran Premier Shrugs Off Kremlin Warning

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI)—Russia has warned Iran that it faces nuclear destruction "in the not too distant future" unless it pulls out of the Central Treaty Organization (CENTO), it was disclosed Sunday.

But Premier Ali Amini said Iran would not be cowed. He shrugged off the threat as another "bluff" in the Kremlin's campaign to force Iran out of its Western alliances and into neutralism—or communism.

Pope Calls On World Leaders To Negotiate

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy. (AP)—Pope John XXIII prayed for peace among all nations Sunday and then dramatically appealed to the world's leaders to turn to negotiations to avoid a third world war.

After a special mass dedicated to world peace, he said, "We call upon the rulers of nations to face squarely the tremendous responsibilities they bear."

"It is truly upon wise men that the issue depends, that force shall not prevail, but right, through free and sincere negotiations; that truth and justice shall be vindicated by safeguarding the essential liberties and the insuppressible values of every nation and of every human person," he said.

His appeal mentioned no leader specifically but it came amid pressure from the nonaligned nations to bring President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev together in face-to-face talks.

Adding drama to his special mass and appeal for world peace, the Pope recalled similar appeals made by other popes on the eve of World War I and World War II. He recalled an exhortation by Pope Pius X, later St. Pius X, in 1914 and the famous peace appeal by Pope Pius XII on Aug. 24, 1939, a week before World War II started.

Pope John said, "We have a whole series of pleadings, sometimes deeply sorrowful and moving but always paternal, calling upon the whole world to guard against the danger while there is yet time, and assuring the nations that whereas everything is lost, and lost to everyone, through war, nothing will be lost through peace."

Pope John—concerned over gathering war clouds over Berlin—said the mass for peace at a temporary altar placed in the Benedictine Hall of Castel Gandolfo, his summer residence overlooking the blue waters of Lake Albano.

Then, sitting on a throne and using spectacles, he read his peace message in Italian.

Bones Of Monster

BULAWAYO, Southern Rhodesia, (AP)—Bones of a three-eyed semiaquatic monster, the dinocephalia, have been found near Lake Kariba by a London University zoologist, Dr. John Attridge, it was reported Sunday. The monster lived in this area of Africa about 200-million years ago.

Soviets To Shoot Rockets Into Central Pacific Area

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union announced Sunday it will shoot "powerful and improved" multistage carrier rockets into the central Pacific during the next few weeks.

The announcement came only 10 days after the Soviet Union, in announcing the resumption of nuclear tests, boasted it was working on superpowerful nuclear bombs with a yield equivalent to 100 million tons of TNT that could be delivered by Soviet rockets to any point on the globe.

The tests of the space rockets, minus their final stages, will begin Wednesday and end Oct. 15, the official Soviet news agency Tass said. It warned other nations to keep aircraft and ships out of the impact area, about a thousand miles southwest of Hawaii, roughly the same zone used by the Soviets in previous rocket tests. The Soviet Union thus marked off its second Pacific area for rocket firing beginning this week. Last week it warned foreign ships and planes to stay out of an area in the Barents and Kara seas beginning Friday while the Soviet Navy conducts maneuvers with rocket weapons.

Tass said the tests will be "in conformity with the plan of research and development work in the further exploration of outer space." Both Soviet astronauts, Yuri Gagarin and Gherman Titov, were boosted into orbit by such powerful multistage rockets. But the tests have an obvious military potential.

The impact area of the Soviet rockets is only about 500 miles south of Johnston Atoll, which the United States uses as a naval base.

Over 250,000 Flee; Record Floods Seen

Tides 15 Feet Above Normal, 15 Inches Of Rain Expected

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—Vanguard gales and tides of Carla Sunday battered Texas and Louisiana coastal cities and the U.S. Weather Bureau said the approaching hurricane may set records for high flood waters.

Hurricane force winds blowing in 75-mile-an-hour gusts lashed Galveston as the center of the hurricane was still 145 miles in the Gulf of Mexico.

Tides 7.9 feet above normal sent water surging into the first floor of The Galveston News, which prepared to suspend publication for the first time since Sept. 9, 1900, when another gigantic hurricane killed 6,000 persons on the resort island.

Torrential rains expected to bring as much as 15 inches of rain lashed most of the Texas coast. Crumbling levees sent tidal floods pouring into the highly industrialized city of Freeport. Large areas of Port O'Connor, Texas City, Seabrook and other coastal towns were flooded.

Mass Exodus

The Weather Bureau said the full force of the hurricane would strike between Matagorda and Galveston late Sunday night with tides reaching 12 to 15 feet above normal. Tides of 8 to 12 feet were predicted between Galveston and Cameron, La., and 5 to 10 feet elsewhere along the hurricane area.

The Corpus Christi Weather Bureau warned late Sunday that all persons should evacuate the city if they are on land less than 10 feet above sea level. The city has 170,000 residents.

More than a quarter of a million men, women and children fled before the storm in mass evacuation termed by the Red Cross as a huge "modern day exodus."

On Galveston Island alone, Chief of Police W. L. Burns said about 15,000 of the 73,000 residents remained. All avenues of escape were closed late Sunday to the mainland.

15-Foot Tide Range Expanded

The weather bureau suddenly extended the range of expected 15-foot tides to 150 miles east of Carla's center, an expansion of 50 miles within an hour.

Tides, more than winds, are feared on the low-lying Louisiana-Texas coast.

At Freeport, 45 miles southwest of Galveston, a levee broke and water poured into the city, whose streets already were battered by waves in places.

In Louisiana, 40,000 or more persons fled the marshy, low coast, and only trappers and emergency rescue workers remained.

"The greatest evacuation of persons in the face of a national calamity in modern times," said the Red Cross of the flight inland.

On the spot reports showed more than a quarter-million men, women and children had fled the coast, making ghost towns of major industrial cities as well as tiny communities, from as far south as Corpus Christi, Tex., and eastward to the Louisiana border.

Hospitals in some towns sent their patients, including new-born babies, out of the threatened area.

Only four hurricanes in the 20th century spawned winds greater than the 150-miles-per-hour velocity near Carla's center, weather bureau records show.

Fresh in the minds of most was the disaster of 1957 when hurricane Audrey struck near the Louisiana-Texas line, taking 590 lives, mostly because of high tides. Audrey contained winds of 105 m.p.h.

Winds rose to 65 m.p.h.—gale force—along the Texas and Louisiana coast during the night.

"Evacuation should be hastened before it is too late," the weather bureau was warned during the morning. Lines of cars stretched for miles inland. Some drove hun-

Tarnish Dulls De Gaulle Image As French Hero

PARIS (AP)—The shiny brightness of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's image as the savior of France is being tarnished, even in the eyes of many of his old friends.

He is aloof as ever, but he is not unassailable. However, there is only a handful of Frenchmen would stoop to an outright assassination attempt such as the one that failed Friday night.

But politicians of many shades, writers of newspaper editorials, farmers and loyal army officers are sniping more openly at his policies. Previously opposition had come almost exclusively from the Communists and Algeria's rightists.

Public frustration over the president's inability to end the Algerian conflict is mounting slowly but steadily.

De Gaulle still commands a great reserve of adulation and popularity with the French masses. But if elections were held soon, opposition candidates would not be swamped as they were in the past.

The president's iron grip on the governmental machinery is as tight as ever. He is still the man who makes all the important decisions, often without bothering to consult or inform his ministers. But his reputation for infallibility is weakening and his opponents are daring to speak out. However, one of the fearful uncertainties haunting the nation today is who and what comes after De Gaulle.

The farmers are irritated because they think the government is too slow giving them help. Deputies and senators are angry because De Gaulle continues to call attention to their political impotence. Many regular army officers are incensed by changes of government policy in Algeria.

The conservative newspaper Figaro, which has been a staunch De Gaulle supporter, wrote after his news conference last week that he had muddled the waters on many Algerian issues by imprecise answers.

Figaro and many members of parliament are worried because De Gaulle is holding onto the broad powers he assumed during the generals' revolt.

Gomulka Tries To Lessen War Fears Of Poles

WARSAW (AP)—Wladyslaw Gomulka, the Communist party boss, assured the Polish people Sunday they need not worry about war before December, "when we will sign a peace with East Germany."

He spoke under a cloudy sky and in a gloomy atmosphere to 100,000 Poles who gathered in Warsaw's big stadium for the celebration of the country's traditional harvest feast.

The Berlin crisis and resumption of nuclear weapons tests have heightened war fears in Poland. Within the last few days Poles have made a run on food shops. In many places throughout the country no sugar, flour or salt can be purchased.

Speaking directly to panic buyers, Gomulka declared: "They seem to think that war is just behind the door. And when they spend all their cash they return the foodstuffs to shops asking for a return of their money."

"For them it is enough to see a military echelon—and they will see many such echelons—to fall into panic."

"Such people should read newspapers more carefully and they will see that the peace treaty will be signed in December, so their poor cowardly souls should be calm until December."

Earliest evidence of inhabitants in the western hemisphere has been recorded as about 23,800 years ago.

"Chatterly" Sponsors Hope For Broadway Run

LONDON (AP)—Sponsors of the play Lady Chatterly said Sunday they will try to take the show to Broadway—four-letter words, beds and all—rather than submit to censorship by Britain's lord chamberlain.

"We are already negotiating for a Broadway run," said Miss Wauna Paul, the play's leading backer. "The American censors are less strict than ours."

Lady Chatterly, adapted from the D. H. Lawrence novel, has been playing to packed houses at the Arts Theater Club in London. It features a lovely blonde named Jeanne Moody as the wife who has an affair with her baronet husband's gamekeeper. Miss Moody's big scene takes place in bed with husky Walter Brown, acting the gamekeeper Mellors.

The Arts Theater is a private club and is exempt from normal stage censorship by the lord chamberlain, the court official who has the final word on all public theatrical performances.

Miss Paul, 48, and her colleagues wanted to stage the play in a big West End theater when it ends its run at the arts Sept. 16. But the lord chamberlain refused to give a public license for Lady Chatterly in her present form.

Racial Flareup Keeps Michigan Town On Edge

NEGAUNEE, Mich. (AP)—A racial flareup involving local white citizens and Negroes from nearby K. L. Sawyer Air Force Base kept this upper Michigan mining town on edge for three hours early Sunday.

Negaunee police called in reinforcements when an estimated 100 Negro airmen massed on downtown streets around midnight following a fight between six Negroes and a group of white men.

Six state troopers and four Marquette County sheriff's deputies aided Negaunee policemen and firemen in preventing further violence. Two Negro airmen and one white man were jailed on disorderly conduct charges.

Maj. Raymond Clarkson, information officer at the air base, said the six Negro airmen complained to Negaunee police Saturday night that they were being harassed by a group of white men cruising in cars.

When the Negroes went to their car to return to the base, Clarkson said, they were met by some 30 white men. He said a free-for-all started.

State Reformatory Fugitive Captured

EAST ORANGE, N. J. (AP)—Gene Homer of Salisbury, Md., a fugitive from a Maryland prison, was apprehended Saturday night at the home of a girl friend, police reported.

Homer escaped from the Maryland Reformatory on Aug. 28. He was serving a term for breaking and entering and larceny.

East Orange police, acting on information from Maryland authorities, had been watching the girl's home for about a week. When Homer showed up last night the girl's family called police.

The girl's name and address were not disclosed.

Evacuation of 135,000 persons in the Port Arthur area industrial complex began Saturday, with five highways leading out of the region jammed bumper-to-bumper for more than 20 miles.

Evacuation of Texas City, on the mainland opposite Galveston, was ordered Sunday morning by Civil Defense authorities. The city has 35,000 persons.

Another industrial center, Brazosport, Tex., with 35,000 persons, had only a dozen or so persons remaining by morning. Most left under police orders. Brazosport is a term given a concentration of small towns at the mouth of the Brazos River.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My boy friend and I have dinner quite often at a little place which is pretty slummy but we enjoy the wonderful Mexican food. Last night the couple at the next table were obviously having a fiery argument. He was accusing her of things and she was making loud denials. After a while he began to push her a little and he knocked her off the chair . . . or she fell. Anyway, I told Wallace to "do something." He refused. In fact he my eye-glasses. The glasses hit the tile floor and broke into pieces. The mother's only comment to him was "That wasn't very nice, Dickey." Then she turned to me and said, "I'm terribly sorry but of course he's just a child and he didn't mean to do it." When I got home my husband was incensed. He thinks the woman should have offered to replace my glasses. In fact he thinks I should send her the bill. Do you?—MY-OPIC

DEAR MY: I agree with your husband. When you get new glasses, put on a catcher's mask, go over there and present the woman with the bill.

DEAR ANN: We've been married eight years. After our third son my wife said "That's enough for me. From now on I'm going to enjoy life like I did before I was tied down."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last week I visited a friend who had a new baby. Her three-year-old son is an undisciplined little tyke and since his baby sister arrived he is more of a problem than ever.

I brought a gift for the new baby and a picture-book for the three-year-old as well. I took the older child on my lap and told him we'd open the gift together. When he saw the book he said "I don't like that" and his hand flew up in anger — knocking off

She's a great little dancer and goes to a public dance hall every Saturday night. I've offered to take her but she says I'm the world's loudest dancer and besides I have to stay home with the kids because sitters are expensive.

She comes home whenever she feels like it and sometimes she doesn't feel like it until 3:00 A.M. She gets phone calls from men and when I say I don't think this sounds good she says they are only dancing partners and I'm being silly.

—MR. DON'T KNOW

DEAR MR: It sounds awful. Are you a husband or a free sinner and telephone answering service to keep your wife's dancing partners straight?

If dancing is so important to your wife's happiness, tell her you'll go along and sit on the sidelines until she chas her self out. Then you can take her home—where she belongs.

Confidential to DISCONTENTED K: Your yearning power is greater than his earning power. Go to work if you "can't stand it."

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting—And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (Copyright, 1961, Field Enterprises, Inc.)

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:
AK42 ♠ Q5 ♦ AJ5 ♣ KJ1093
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass
3 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Three spades. We do not recommend proceeding to three no trump. You have already announced your diamond protection and you should seize this opportunity to inform partner of your moderate spade support.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
AK10964 ♠ 5 ♦ J3 ♣ KJ62
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Dbl Redbl Pass
Pass 2 ♥ 2 ♠ Pass
What do you bid now?

A.—Four spades. On the surface this hand is worth only 14 points. But after spades have been supported, the value of your hand is increased by three points—one for the fifth spade and two for the sixth. You therefore have a value of 17 points. Partner's redouble combined with a raise, shows a minimum of 16.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
AQ53 ♠ A75 ♦ A642 ♣ 97
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
4 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Nothing. Your jump to three spades promised a hand valued at 13 to 16 points. You haven't any more than that. If partner had sufficient assets to warrant interest in a slam, he would have made some move other than the routine bid of four spades.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
AK4 ♠ AKJ9 ♦ AKQJ10 ♣ 6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
2 ♠ Pass 2 ♥ Pass
What do you bid now?

A.—Four no trump, a clear-cut Blackwood call. Partner has indicated a heart suit that is probably six to the queen and the only pertinent question is the number of aces. If he has two, a grand slam will be there. If he has only one, you will, of course, contract for six.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
A74 ♠ J5 ♦ K862 ♣ Q943
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ Dbl Pass 1 NT
Pass 2 ♥ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Your high card holding dictates that you make another move. You have an average hand in high cards which will surely produce a game opposite a sound take-out double. The recommended procedure is to bid two no trump.

Q. 6—As South you hold:
AK3 ♦ K87432 ♣ AK973
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Dbl 2 ♣ 2 ♥
What do you bid now?

A.—Five clubs. It is true that partner has not advertised a strong hand since he failed to redouble and there is some doubt as to whether you can make it, but it looks very much as though the enemy is about to bid four hearts, which, apparently, you have no hope of defeating. Since you will feel constrained to make a sacrifice bid in that event, you might as well do it first as last and put the pressure of guessing squarely up to West.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
AK65 ♠ 108543 ♦ 64 ♣ 943
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ 1 NT Dbl ?
What do you bid?

A.—Nothing. It would be presumptuous of you to attempt to rescue with this hand. Furthermore, partner may wish to rescue himself to two clubs or two diamonds and a two heart bid by you would jack him up one stage higher.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
AK94 ♠ A103 ♦ K975 ♣ J86
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 NT Dbl Pass ?
What do you bid?

A.—With this hand you have a clear-cut "leave-in." Partner's hand is presumably as good as an opening one no trump bid; that is to say, at least 16 points. You have eight, which gives your side a preponderance of the high cards to wit, at least 24 to 16. West's dummy is known therefore to be a complete blank and his offer to make seven tricks will fall short of the mark.

FSTC Students Begin Arrival For New Term

Freshman Week Program Begins

FROSTBURG — Activities at Frostburg State Teachers College for the new term began yesterday as Freshmen Week opened with registration and arrival of many students. A convocation for students and their parents was held at 4 p. m.

Today, an assembly will be held at 9 a. m. with Dean of Instruction Ivan C. Diehl conducting a brief discussion among faculty members on "Underneath the Glamour of College Life". There will be tours and discussion groups and during the afternoon John Zimmerman, librarian will explain the library. Sports events, a bonfire and other social activities are planned for this evening.

Tomorrow's assembly will feature Dr. Alice Manicur, dean of students, presenting John Allison, counselor to men; Miss Cleo Campbell, counselor to women; Miss Geraldine Drake, food production manager; Mrs. Martha Flickinger, nurse; Harold Skidmore, snack bar and book store manager; Mrs. Hazel Swecker, Mrs. Anna Workman and Mrs. Laura Waldrup, residence hall supervisors; Franklin Martens, maintenance foreman and William Frye, patrolman. Activities will conclude with folk dancing at the quadrangle.

Payment of fees and registration will take place Wednesday, followed by the President R. Bowen Hardesty's reception for new students in Gunter Hall at 8 p. m.

Thursday, registration for freshmen will conclude in the morning and classes will begin at 1:30 p. m. A clergy's buffet for new students and guides will be held at 6 p. m. in the Old Main picnic area. A movie will conclude the day's activities.

A dance will be held Friday night in Gunter hall, and a faculty-student picnic and ball game is scheduled for Saturday from 4 to 6 p. m. Vespers Sunday will be sponsored by the Student Christian Association, and the week's program will close with a block party September 18 on Broadway at 8 p. m., sponsored by the Frostburg Merchants Association.

The Freshmen Week committee includes Jerry Howie and Vicki Green, co-chairmen; Dr. Manicur, advisor, John Allison, Miss Campbell, Thomas Hutcheson, Dr. Virginia Mills, Samuel Underwood, Glenn Workman and John Zimmerman.

Student committees follow: William Buttrill, Lenora Gateau, Barbara Jackson, Janice Pritchett, Thomas Vann and Evelyn Walker, coordinators for Freshman Week; Joseph Loveless, Joan Gisiel and Carol Miller, bonfire; Serena Kerr and Galen Claggett, "Clergy Night"; Thomas Vann, dice jockey; Joseph Loveless and Maureen Collins, folk dancing; Barbara Jackson, information booth; Joyce Hamner, movies; Patricia Lavelle, president's reception; Joseph Loveless, Joan Gisiel and Carol Miller, Sports Day; Catherine Froelich and Ned Boehm, Sunday social.

Fifty-two students will also serve as Freshmen Week guides, conducting new students about the campus and seeing that they make meetings on time at the right places.

Bloodmobile Visits Area

PETERSBURG W. Va. — A bloodmobile from the Red Cross Washington Regional Blood Center will be at the Methodist Church here from noon until 5:45 p. m. today.

Tomorrow, a visit is scheduled at the Moose Hall in Moorefield from noon until 5:45 p. m. Thursday's schedule includes a visit to the Presbyterian Church in Martinsburg from 10:30 a. m. until 4:15 p. m.

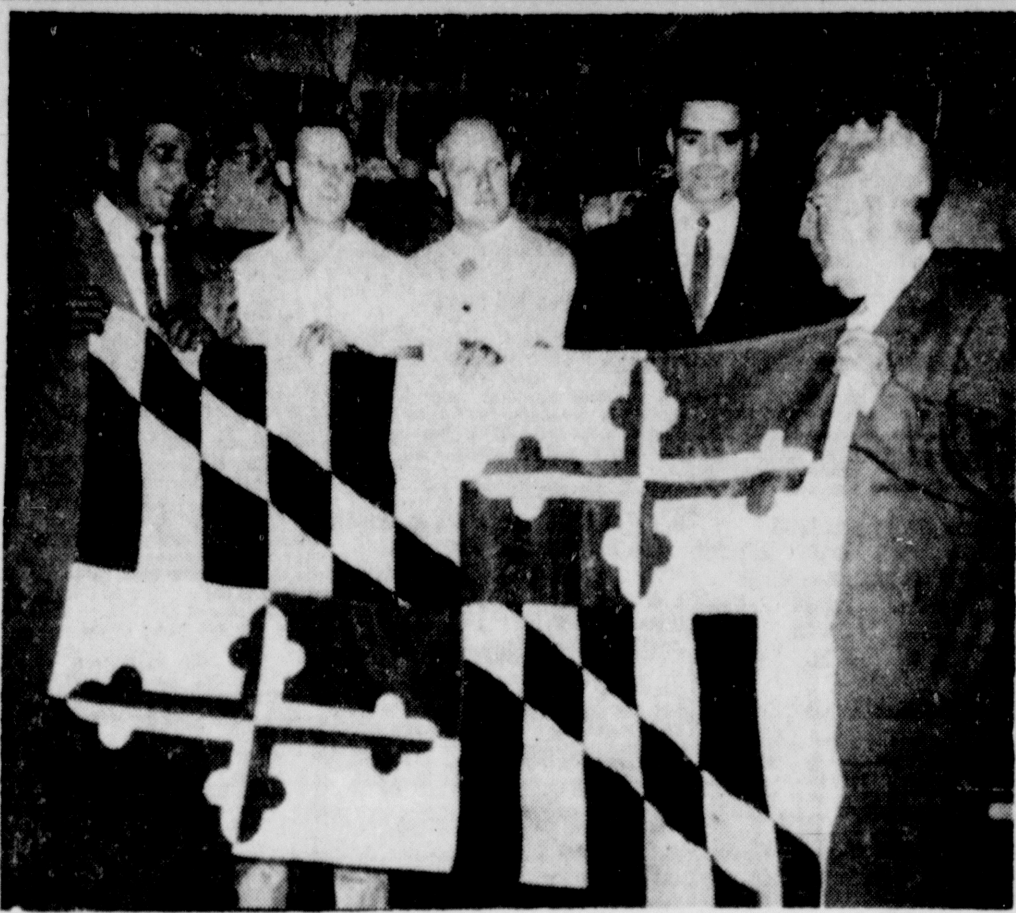

Last week the Washington Center distributed 1,180 pints of blood in the District of Columbia and portions of Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia. Thirty-five pints came to West Virginia.

Tri-Towns Area Blood Donors Needed Tuesday

PIEDMONT — The Johnstown Red Cross bloodmobile unit will visit the Tri-Towns Tuesday and set up operations in the recreation hall of Trinity Methodist Church from noon to 6 p. m. The quota for September is 90 pints.

Mrs. Carleton Bell, Piedmont, is chairman and Mrs. Paul Cueva, Luke, co-chairman of the project. Mrs. Bernadine Appel has charge of donor recruitment and Mrs. Cueva, typists, Mrs. Owen Rhodes will be the canteen nurse and Mrs. Ruth High will have charge of the canteen. Miss Sue Gleason will handle display posters.

Local doctors are being recruited by Dr. James H. Wolverson Jr. Mrs. Patsy Wolford and Mrs. Marian Kalbaugh are recruiting nurses for the afternoon. Persons who make appointments to visit the bloodmobile unit are being urged to show up, although walk-in donors will be welcomed. Efforts are also being made to secure new donors as Red Cross workers are anxious to exceed the established quota, a false alarm.

Lonaconing VFW Presented Maryland Flag

Pictured at the presentation of a Maryland flag to Alvin C. Neat Post No. 5280, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Lonaconing, are Commander Bernard Cordial, Austin Goodwin, and Melvin Sloan, of the VFW post; James M. Roby, registrar of wills, and Senator Charles M. See, both of Cumberland. The Maryland flag was received by Commander Cordial and several of the officers Friday evening, during a visit of Senator See to Lonaconing. The new state flag was obtained for the Lonaconing VFW by Gov. J. Millard Tawes and was presented with his compliments by Sen. See, who praised the work of the post and their civic and community activities.

Bruce High Enrollment Totals 814

Increase Of 48 Over Last Year

WESTERNPORT — The total enrollment of Bruce High School is 814 which is 48 more than last year according to Principal Kenneth Sheetz. There were 766 last year.

This year, Junior High has enrolled 172 in the seventh grade; 168 in the eighth and 167 in the ninth for a total of 507.

There are 306 in the Senior High as follows: 118 in the tenth grade; 102 in the eleventh and 86 in the twelfth.

Mrs. Mary Jane Metcalfe, has been named to teach English. She is teaching two classes of seniors, two classes of seventh graders and one eighth grade class.

Miss Metcalfe, is a graduate of Fort Hill High School, Cumberland and received her A.B. degree in English at Washington College, Chestertown. She has done substituting and home teaching in Illinois.

Mrs. Nancy Staten, LaVale, is an additional instructor who is teaching French. Hereafter the students will have the opportunity to take six years of French.

She will also teach French to the juniors and seniors. Mrs. Katherine McGiboney, who previously taught classes in French will give her full time to guidance.

Miss White, daughter of Mrs. Mary Ann White and the late Milton White, graduated from Henryton School of Nursing, Henryton, Md. on August 18. Miss White was one of 27 students graduating and ranked second highest in her class.

Miss White has worked at Mt. Wilson Hospital, Mt. Wilson doing medical work since March 1 of this year. She received her state license in August having 49 credits over the required amount.

Prior to entering Henryton, Miss White attended Beall High School where she was a member of the Nurses Club, Future Teachers of America, the Ushers Club and a cafeteria worker.

Attending her graduation were Mrs. White, Lois White, Rosie Kelly and Richard Edwards.

Mrs. Ann Foote, president, conducted devotional services at the recent business meeting. Mrs. Ada Barnes reported on the progress of the "Calendar" project.

Parliaments And Talk Of Peace

The U.S. Congress has virtually ceded to the Executive Branch the power to set tariffs and to make war, and it is proposed that another all-important legislative power, to raise or lower tax rates, also go over to the President.

President de Gaulle of France has stripped the Parliament of the Fifth Republic of nearly all power. The British House of Commons has only the very important power of being able to overthrow the government. The so-called law-making bodies of Italy and of most Latin nations — excepting the Spanish dictatorship, where the Cortes does Franco's bidding — are much like the British. Communist parliaments are huge, unwieldy rubber-stamp convocations. And nobody yet knows much about the parliaments of the emergent nations.

That's why critics of the Interparliamentary Union incline to dismiss it as a debating society of powerless parliamentarians which exists chiefly to give its delegates a plush summer junket. The Union secretariat will reply, of course, that the organization helped pave the way for the League of Nations (and hence indirectly for the United Nations), the World Court, and arbitration treaties now in force. U.S. members of Congress who find these overseas trips pleasant interruptions of a muggy Washington summer session will add that nothing but good can come from discussions — informal as well as formal — among the legislators of the world on how to improve international relations and prevent war.

Membership and voting in the Union is by population. On this basis, the United States is allotted 21 delegates, the Soviet Union 22; refreshingly enough the Russians pay more towards the upkeep of the IU secretariat in Geneva than we do — $22,000 a year to our $21,000. According to the U.S. State Department, the dues to IU are the lowest pro rata payment by the United States to any international organization.

The Union opens another convention tomorrow in Brussels, with nothing very concrete expected to come of it. But as long as the gentlemen are going to talk at all, it's pleasant and perhaps useful to have them talking about peace.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

A Mixed-Up World

It is perhaps preferable to be very young and to know only the beginning of the current confusion. Those who started in the 1929 Depression, which lasted until about 1933, have never known economic stability. Those who started in the regime of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Adolf Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin, have never known political peace and order.

Those of us who go back much further can remember an altogether different world — one of order and progress. Our greatest excitement, in my memory, was William Jennings Bryan's demand for soft money. We were told that that was demagogic and senseless, but Bryan's 16 to 1 money is nothing to be compared with the fiat money to which we have now become so accustomed.

When I was a young fellow, an exciting movement of our time was for woman's rights. I recall when free marriage was unusual. By free marriage is meant that the young people choose each other without parental interference. I recall when women hardly found work other than to be school teachers, household servants, seamstresses and salesladies. The female typist and stenographer was just coming in but it was not considered quite proper. I can recall how the Pankhurst sisters stirred the Anglo-Saxon world to a recognition of the equality of women and when "votes for women" was an actual accomplishment, it was believed that political virtue had been achieved, that motherly goodness would cure politics.

So, many of us believed that peace was just around the corner. Andrew Carnegie, who had amassed the greatest fortune known at that time, devoted much of his wealth to the pursuit of peace. Alfred Nobel of Sweden left some of his money for peace prizes, although he had earned it making explosives. It was believed that war would never come again and that all international grievances would be settled by the International Tribunal at The Hague. Theodore Roosevelt was a pacifist but when war did come in 1914, he wanted us to fight immediately and his sons went to war as an example of the Spartan character of his family.

When World War I appeared on the horizon, Henry Ford was so shocked that he hired the old Oscar II and filled it with pacifists, led by Rosika Schwimmer, to sail to Europe to convince the European nations to stop fighting. Henry Ford and those who travelled with him believed that they could talk Europe out of World War I. Curiously, William Randolph Hearst, whose voice was then loud and potent, opposed our going into World War I.

When the United States entered World War I, it was not to punish Germany for being too late in imperialistic history but rather to make the world safe for democracy. And most of us believed that this was really our purpose. Woodrow Wilson went to Paris to establish the League of Nations which he and General Smuts of South Africa conceived as a body to end war forever.

But Wilson's concept of a peaceful and orderly world was upset by the Russian Revolution, an unanticipated event but inevitable as a result of the political and moral corruption of Czarist Russia. There was, at first, some hope that the revolution must lead to the establishment of a democratic country modelled after Great Britain. This movement failed and the Revolution was taken over by the Bolsheviks, a comparatively small party which was then led by Lenin and Trotsky. The Bolsheviks were ruthless in their rigid adherence to a Marxian program to use Russia as a base to change the world.

Thus our time of peace and order was destroyed in 1917 and since then for 44 years now, we have had war and the consequences of war and our lives have been changed far beyond what anyone could have believed possible in 1917.

One example that might be cited is our economic system which, in 1917, was definitely capitalistic, and government interference, which was appearing slowly in the Theodore Roosevelt and the Taft Administrations, was regarded as improper and a violation of American life. After 1917, it was expected that the government would control everything. Herbert Hoover controlled food; Bernard Baruch controlled production and distribution; the government took over the railroads under the management of William G. McAdoo. Then men were not Socialists; they were engaged in winning a war. But what they did changed America.

'Meet My Foreign Relations Expert'

The Futility Of The Struggle For World Opinion

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON
The atmosphere in this city, which was quite somber enough already, has now been darkened a bit further by the pangs of disappointment. The source of the disappointment is the reaction of what is usually called "world opinion" to the Soviet nuclear tests.

With cool calculation, in order to avoid offending world opinion, President Kennedy had put off his country's resumption of nuclear testing long after he had lost all hope of Soviet agreement to a workable test ban.

With the most precise timing, the President had even sent U. S. test negotiator Arthur Dean to Geneva, to plead once again for a test ban, and thus to underline America's good-will in the eyes of world opinion, at the very moment when he foresaw the Soviets would begin testing again.

To do these things, a serious price had to be paid. It was not easy to resist the strong domestic political pressure for earlier resumption of American testing. But the price was thought to be worth paying, because of the forecast that the Soviets would be driven to make the first tests—and would therefore be judged guilty in the court of world opinion.

In short, it is not easy to recall an occasion when risks have been more astutely weighed, and Soviet behavior has been more correctly anticipated. The risks, it must be understood, were very real indeed. If the U. S. had been the first to resume nuclear testing, the whole world would have been deafened by the screams, shrieks, wails, and moans of self-righteous indignation from the professed voices of world opinion assembled at the neutralist conference in Belgrade.

In this event, American freedom of action in the Berlin crisis would have been gravely hampered, by sympathetic movements of public opinion in Britain, France, and other Western European countries. What was avoided, in fact, was well worth avoiding.

Yet the pangs of disappointment are still pretty sharp in Washington, especially in the group that shares the viewpoint of Adlai E. Stevenson, because what was gained by the shrewd management of the nuclear test problems has proved to be so downright trifling.

With the most arrogant brutality, the Soviets not merely took the lead in resuming nuclear testing (which Khrushchev had sworn he would never do). They also resumed testing above ground, using the method that does real damage by fallout. But among the voices of world opinion, Nehru hardly audibly mumbled his regrets; Gamal Abdel Nasser said this was a bad thing; and the rest were ostentatiously silent.

Judging by the other actions of the Belgrade meeting, moreover, Khrushchev has actually gained by his brutality. The main result will be neutralist pressure on President Kennedy to negotiate with Khrushchev on Khrushchev's chosen terms and ground, about the Berlin problem.

Khrushchev treated the neutralist leaders with open contempt. Almost every great man at Belgrade had said, again and again,

Inside Washington

NEWSMEN IN MOVIE — When the movie version of "Advise and Consent," the best-selling novel about the Senate, reaches the screen, you may have an opportunity to see your favorite Washington correspondents.

Capitol newsmen have been invited to play extra roles in the filming of the picture, which calls for several scenes involving reporters. Many have accepted the invitation, although some, for obvious reasons, will not be used. It seems that not all of Washington's reporters look like the Hollywood version of reporters. And whenever there is a conflict in this "image," the Hollywood, rather than the Washington idea of reporters will prevail.

Another thing, while the reporters will be real, the Senators they interview will not be. The picture's director has decided against using any real-life Senators in his cast, although it is known on Capitol Hill that there are some who dearly would like to participate—and would even forego actors' fees.

It has always been forbidden to film the Senate while it is in session. The rule is iron-clad and has never knowingly been broken. It goes so far that tourists' cameras must be checked at the entrance. The Senate's leaders have always believed that pictures of the Senate in action would be quite a shock to the public, because most times the seats are empty and those present are rarely paying attention to the speaker.

The director of the picture had received tentative permission to film the Senate in session, but photographers who regularly cover it were so incensed by the idea of breaking the rule for Hollywood that the Senate backed off. Instead a complete replica of the Senate chamber will be built in Hollywood and the floor scenes made there.

How Radiologists Help Detect Early Cancer

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

A rather heavy, middle-aged woman requested a thorough examination because of vague arthritic pains. There were no abnormalities but when her chest was viewed under the fluoroscope, a small shadow was noted on the right side.

When the shadow was localized, we found it was coming from a small tumor in the right breast. The lesion had been missed during the usual examination because it was small and the woman was stout. The tumor proved to be malignant and, thanks to X-rays, was detected at an early and curable stage.

Most breast tumors can be felt with the hand when the examination is done properly. The self-examination program that women are taught to do at home has uncovered many growths in an early stage, when cure is possible. Anything that hastens diagnosis and treatment will improve the outlook for those who develop breast cancer.

A group of Philadelphia radiologists conducted a breast-cancer detection survey on 1,312 women over a five-year period. These physicians reported their results in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Each volunteer was examined every six weeks via the usual method and by X-rays. Suspicious lesions were found in 115 and of these, 92 proved to be innocent, and 23 were cancerous. Of the nonmalignant growths, 24 could not be felt by the examining physician but were detected by X-ray.

The important feature of this study was that in 70 per cent the cancers were diagnosed before they had a chance to spread beyond the breast. In other surveys, the glands in the armpits were involved in 40 to 50 per cent by the time surgery was done.

Dr. Van Dellen will send leaflet on self-examination of the breasts if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

U.S. Policy Toward Pakistan Has Failed; Afghanistan May Go Red

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — When President Kennedy entertained President Ayub of Pakistan at a candle-lit dinner at Mount Vernon on the banks of the Potomac it made headlines around the nation. But last week a little-noticed item of much greater significance regarding Pakistan did not make headlines.

That little item indicated that Kennedy's dinner did not pay off. Afghanistan, according to a news flash from Karachi, had broken relations with Pakistan. This means that Afghanistan, one of the most rugged and independent countries in Asia, will probably join the Soviet orbit. It will join, not because it wants to, but because its only way to communicate with the outside world, once relations with Pakistan are severed, will be through the Soviet.

Unfortunately U. S. policy had something to do with this disastrous break; because U. S. policy, ever since John Foster Dulles set up the Bagdad Pact allies, has been to arm the Pakistan Army to the teeth.

The arms were given supposedly to prevent an invasion from Russia, but were used instead to fortify the border opposite Afghanistan and opposite India.

This in turn caused both India and Afghanistan to buy more arms. India bought its arms, then made up the deficit in her budget by loans and food grants from the USA.

Afghanistan imported arms from Russia. When I was in Kabul, just before Eisenhower paid his historic visit, Prime Minister Prince Daoud admitted that Mig 17s and Russian Ilyushin bombers had been flown in from Moscow to defend the border against Pakistan.

And in Teheran, the Shah of Iran complained that arms sent to both Pakistan and Afghanistan endangered him. That's how U. S. arms to a weak country which doesn't need them can upset relations among our friends in the Middle East.

Note — When President Ayub came to Washington for his Mount Vernon dinner, he was boiling mad because Vice President Johnson had promised substantial aid to India. Kennedy did his best to smooth Ayub's feelings. But the dictator of Pakistan returned to his bickering with Afghanistan, which last week led to severance of diplomatic relations and the almost inescapable alignment of Afghanistan with the Soviet bloc.

How The Met Was Saved

The inside story of how the Metropolitan Opera was saved can now be told. It was the work largely of President Kennedy and Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg.

Goldberg, who doesn't leave tough strikes to his conciliation service, moved in on Rudolf Bing, manager of the Met, and the Musicians Union with a letter from President Kennedy and with this ultimatum:

"I have a letter from the President," he said. "He feels that the prestige of the United States demands that the Met go on this season."

Both sides seemed relieved. Both obviously wanted a season. But manager Bing said he wanted not merely a season but a good season. He said he wanted his top stars to sing. He agreed, however, to try to get them back even though some had already taken advantage of escape clauses in their contracts.

While both sides agreed to accept Secretary Goldberg as arbitrator, that didn't end the matter. Later Bing phoned Goldberg to ask:

"Will you do something for me? I may have trouble getting Renata Tebaldi in Milan to sign up, and Entendant Rolf Liberman in Hamburg, Jon Vickers in Vienna, and several others. Will you cable them? Also, I'm having trouble getting trans-Atlantic telephone connections. Can you help on that?"

The Secretary of Labor agreed to help. He called the Vice President of Bell Telephone who assigned one man to do nothing except put in calls for Bing to the top opera stars he wanted to woo back to the Met.

Simultaneously, Goldberg himself cabled all the stars named above, together with director Set Svanholm of the Royal Opera House in Stockholm, director Cornell MacNeil in Rome, and Frank Pandolfi, director of the Connecticut Opera Association, asking their cooperation.

Thus the Met was saved for another season.

Who's Speaker At Home?

Missouri's handsome Congressman Dick Bolling, who's in line to become next speaker of the House, had a hard time this summer speaking in his own house.

He got caught in a political squeeze between his wife, whom he adores, and speaker Sam Rayburn, whom he admires.

The divisive issue was whether to declare a Congressional recess in the summer. Barbara Bolling wanted Congress to close while school was out, so Congressmen could spend their vacations with their families.

"Utter nonsense!" snorted Rayburn who wanted to keep Congressional noses to the legislative grindstone and who didn't then realize that he would have to take a Congressional recess himself.

Not without trepidation, Congressman Bolling sided with Rayburn and against his wife.

Mrs. Bolling promptly opposed her husband and signed up with the wives' lobby against summer sessions.

CONFUSION IN BERLIN — Unbelievable as it may seem, the Allies after months of contingency planning had no contingency plan for meeting the Communist moves sealing off East Berlin from the West. The Allies had nearly 80 standby plans carefully worked out, but all dealt with countermeasures when and if the Communists interfere with Allied access to West Berlin. No one bothered to anticipate the most obvious Communist tactic of all — namely, cracking down on East Berlin. As a result, the Allies milled around in confusion for two days after the Communists began to build up a barbed-wire fence on the West Berlin border.

FORMULA FOR MOSCOW — Father Richards, the new chaplain for the American Embassy in Moscow, has been boning up on Russian language and lore before taking off for his new assignment. He has also been calling upon every known Soviet expert within range of the State Department. Out of all this advance preparation, he has developed a formula for getting along in Russia — "Respect Russian views, but don't apologize for your own country; be friendly, be yourself, but above all, don't try to be a do-it-yourself spy."

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

It was the November meeting. The lady treasurer walked up to the stage lectern and announced that the P.T.A. had a surplus in the treasury. There was a patter of applause. She sat, smirking. The lady president asked for the next order of business and some fat man stood to a point of order. "What," he said, "are we going to do with the extra money?"

A question. Hardly moot, but a question. All year long, the P.T.A. of St. Anastasia in Teaneck, New Jersey, had been meeting and contributing small sums to the coffee and cake, and the winter dance for fathers and mothers. Now there was a surplus.

Another man said it would be nice if the P.T.A. used the money to get a present for the nuns who earned their heavenly wings by facing our little monsters with fortitude five days a week. This evoked so much applause that three dozing fathers awakened and looked around belligerently.

The lady treasurer said: "How about a television set?" and everyone thought that this was a wonderful idea. There were some misgivings because this was November 1947, and TV was so new that the only place a man could see it was in a progressive saloon. One of the misgivers said that maybe the poor sisters would be looking at the wrong things.

This was good for 15 minutes of debate. But the television set won and a committee was appointed to see if they could buy one at a discount because it was for the nuns. They couldn't. They paid the full freight. At Christmas, a great big life-size set, 17 inches, was delivered to the convent on Robinson Street.

After much conversation between Sister Margaret, who ran the convent, and Sister Eileen, the school principal, it was decided to place the set in the sitting room diagonally opposite the entrance.

There it sat, a milky, opaque eye which could be brought to life by electricity which, in some magical manner, pulled an integrated picture out of the air somewhere around the old convent chimney. In the evening, when the dishes were done and there were no test papers to be scored, the nuns gathered in expectant silence, moving chairs and holding their breaths as the thing was turned on.

What they wanted, they assured each other, was something in current events, a political debate, or a look at the Senate well as a Truman bill came up for debate. What they got was Milton Berle and Jackie Gleason, and Dave Garroway in Chicago.

One morning, they learned that the provincial of the order was about to pay the convent a visit. In a trice, the nuns realized that they had no permission to have a television set. No one dared to blame anyone else. The defense would be: The P.T.A. gave it to us; is it all right to look at it when there is something elevating to look at?

The provincial was an elderly Irish nun with a broad brogue and a short fuse for the materialistic things of life. She belived in prayer, prayer and more prayer. So all the nuns in St. Anastasia began to pray. And what they prayed for was that the mother provincial would let them keep the television set.

Came a sunny Saturday morning and an old car drew up and the provincial stepped out. Sister Margaret and Sister Eileen helped her up the old steps and she fixed her spectacles on the bridge of her nose and said, absently: "Oh yes. Good morning, sisters."

Inside, all the other nuns stood fingering their rosaries at their sides. One extra appeal to heaven couldn't hurt. The white corrugation around their faces trembled as the provincial came into the sitting room, nodding and smiling right and left.

She looked around, hoping that someone would have the sense to bring a chair, when she saw the opaque eye. "And what," she said pointing, "would that be?" Everyone gulped and two young sisters gave each other the all-is-lost look. "That," said Sister Margaret in an off-hand manner, "is a television set." Two others sneaked a chair up behind her.

"Indeed," said the old nun, "how does it work?" All the hands went back to the rosaries. What kind of a program could anyone get on a Saturday morning? Still, it was tantamount to an order, so the set was turned on.

There was some sound, then a confused blur, then a clear picture of some rocks in Arizona. Some men in big hats were shooting at the other men in big hats. All the men were hiding behind rocks. In a moment, the holy precincts of the convent were rent by the sound of gunfire.

All the sisters stood behind the provincial and gave each other the sudden-death glance. The old nun beamed. "Don't worry, sisters," she said, "the right will triumph." There was a moment of silence. Then she said: "Just watch for a man on a white horse..."

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Ambrose Bierce tells about a Civil War encounter in western Virginia where a chap in his company named Abbott was lost in action. "It is not odd that I recall this," adds Bierce, "for there was something most unusual in the way he perished. He was lying flat on his stomach and was killed by being struck in the side by a nearly-spent cannon-shot that came rolling down a hill among us. The shot remained in him until removed. It was a solid round shot, evidently cast in some private foundry, whose proprietor, setting the laws of advertising above those of ballistics, had put his 'imprint' on it.

"The shot bore, in slightly sunken letters, the name 'Abbott!'"

Somebody got the title of Pastor

Goodley's sermon mixed up on the bulletin board outside the church, but the result was the biggest turnout in months. The title read "Do Married Women Make the Best Wives?"

Fairgo's 35th Race Meet Opens Today, Over 400 Horses At Track

Mackin Will Make Debut As Secretary

Leading Stables, Jockeys To Vie; 7th Is Feature

With one of the largest gatherings of thoroughbreds assembled here in recent years, everything is in readiness for the opening of the 35th race meeting of the Cumberland Fair Association today at 2 p.m., at Fairgo.

There were over 400 horses in the barns at the local half miler yesterday afternoon, according to Guy Klank, stall manager, and they were still being vanned into the local plant last night.

"There should be close to 450 thoroughbreds here by the time the 8-race program gets under way today," Klank stated.

A survey of the stables yesterday was ample proof that there will be ample horses for the meet and set at rest rumors that have been flying thick and fast for the past several weeks that there would be a scarcity of thoroughbreds for the 35th meeting at Fairgo.

Mackin Makes Debut
J. Melvin Mackin, of Havre De Grace, who makes his debut as racing secretary here, predicted three weeks ago that there would be over 300 horses here and that Cumberland could expect a good race meeting. It is estimated that 80 per cent of the horses that ran at Bel Air and Timonium during the past month are now stabled at Fairgo.

The biggest stables on the grounds are those handled by Bryan Webb, of New Jersey, who has a string of 20, Shirley Payne, with 20, E. Leslie Miller, 18, J. N. "Nick" Greer, of Bel Air, 15, Dick Douglas 15, James Peterman 15, W. Stanley Moxley 14, Joe Paoli 14, Walter "Tex" Elkins 14, Carroll D. Lee, leading trainer here in 1958, twelve and C. Lamar Creswell, Charles Purcell, L. E. "Mandy" Torreyson and A. Bertrando with ten each.

Charley McKee, Larry Reynolds, Anthony Russo, William J. Passmore, Bill Clark, Johnny Solars, Eddie Melvor, Jimmy Kirk, Tommy DePalo, Terry Liphart, Gus Pappas, Sam Vacanti, Steve Rudi, Harold Keene, Lamar Bauer are among the 30 or more riders who will perform here. Practically all of the saddlesmiths who had mounts at Bel Air and Timonium will be at Fairgo. John J. Belshak, a famed jockey of yesterday, will serve as custodian of the jockeys' room.

Hoyt Wilhelm Saves Orioles

Rescues Estrada, Stops Senators, 3-2

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Hoyt Wilhelm put down a ninth inning Washington uprising Sunday to preserve Chuck Estrada's 13th victory as the Baltimore Orioles edged the Washington Senators, 3-2.

Wilhelm retired Marty Keough on a fly to center after Billy Klaus' pinch single with two out drove in both Washington runs and knocked Estrada from the box. It was the 15th save of the year for Wilhelm, who has also been credited with nine victories.

Joe McClain, who went the first six innings for the Senators, was charged with his 17th loss. He has won eight. McClain allowed only six hits, but two of them were solo homers by Jackie Brandt, his 15th, and Brooks Robinson, his seventh.

Phils Batter Chicago, 14-6

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Philadelphia Phillies battered four pitchers for 12 hits Sunday, including Don Demeter's grand slam home run, in a 14-6 victory over the Chicago Cubs who committed seven of the game's eight errors.

The Phillies, trailing 6-1, exploded for seven runs in the seventh inning off starter Don Cardwell, victim of Demeter's blast, and loser Barney Schultz who yielded a single, hit a batter and issued two successive walks.

The Phils batted around again in the eighth inning, scoring six runs on five hits, a walk and another hit batsman off pitchers Bob Anderson and Don Elston.

Reds Sweep Series With Cards, 5-2

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Wally Post's three run homer, his 18th of the season, broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning and gave the league leading Cincinnati Reds a 5-2 victory and a sweep of a three game series with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Right hander Bob Purkey went the route for the Reds, limiting the Cards to two hits as he posted his 16th victory against 10 defeats. The two hits, coupled with a passed ball and a walk, gave the Cards their only runs of the game in the top of the sixth inning.

U.S. Amateur Golf Meet Opens Today

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—The world's most important amateur golf crown, the USGA national championship, goes on the block Monday—on a course that is supposed to be tailored for the golfing greatness of young Jack Nicklaus.

A field of 200 is entered in the 61st annual competition on old Pebble Beach, rated by experts as one of the toughest golfing tests in the world.

Giants Jolt Dodgers, 7-1

Los Angeles Trails Reds By Four Games

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Giants dealt the Los Angeles Dodgers' pennant hope another smash Sunday by trouncing them 7-1 behind the home run hitting, of Orlando Cepeda and Willie Mays.

As a result the Dodgers skidded to four games behind Cincinnati in the National League race as they sustained their eighth straight loss in Candlestick Park. Cepeda boosted his league-leading home run total to 40 when he crashed a three-run job off reliever Sandy Koufax in the fifth inning after Mays had opened the third with his 37th.

It was Willie's third homer in as many games and came off loser Stan Williams, now 12-11, who has been beaten four times this year by San Francisco.

Stu Miller and Billy Loes combined to limit Los Angeles to three hits, one of them a homer by Ron Fairly.

Thomas' Home Run Wins For Angels

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—George Thomas hit a two run homer in the seventh inning Sunday to give the Los Angeles Angels a come-from-behind 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox in a game that produced a record of 221 home runs for one park in a single season.

The White Sox had a lead of 3-2 going into the seventh after Al Smith, Jim Landis and Luis Aparicio each hit solo homers. Landis' second-inning homer over the left field wall at Wrigley Field tied the old major league record of 219 set in 1957 at Cincinnati's Crosley Field.

All told, there were six home runs in Sunday's game in the home of homers, Wrigley Field.

Secrets Of Charm by John Robert Powers

The Art Of Conversation-Pieces

To be a really good conversation-piece, costume jewelry must have something worthwhile to say (complimenting your attractiveness) — and it must have a chance to say it!

Help me to prove my point by looking closely at the fashion photos in the next magazine you leaf through. You will notice that all the Powers Girls and other professional models featured are very sparing in the jewelry they show.

They are just as selective when they dress in private life. They would rather wear too little jewelry — even none at all — than too much. Even sentiment can't persuade them to add pieces that would make them ornately overdressed.

Their reasons are profoundly practical . . . and identical. They feel that too much jewelry will rob attention from their faces, hairdos and gowns. All these devices top billing when a well-groomed woman is working for personal dramatic effect.

In addition, a great clutter of jewelry robs individual pieces of their chances to show off — and to show off the wearer.

Inevitably, some women feel naked unless they are decorated stem to stern — with earrings, necklace, lapel pins or brooches, bracelets, wristwatch, rings, perhaps a fancy belt, shiny buttons and gaudy shoe buckles thrown on for good measure. It could be they all add up to another grown-up version of the "security blanket."

And blankets they are, covering up most of what's best in a woman's physical features and in the cut and design of her clothes.

How much — and which pieces — to wear at one time are matters for personal judgment, of course. The decision depends on many things — the style and nature of the outfit to be worn, the occasion and time of day for wearing it, the other accessories that will complete the costume. Coiffure-style and other physical attributes must also be considered by each woman individually.

As a general guide, keep the count down to three or four pieces, at the most, to accompany the average basic daytime costume. And don't jam them too close together, unless the pieces are parts of a matched set. (And remember, even sets aren't sacred; they can be split up when it suits you.)

Let it be earrings and beads or earrings and pin (but NOT all three, unless the effect is fabulous). Let it be a watch or bracelet, unless the bands are very similar. In the case of a really sumptuous costume piece, a knockout necklace or an intricate pair of oversize earrings, let the conversation-piece be the solo attraction. Wear it alone.

Should career-girls wear jewelry on the job? There's advice on this in my pamphlet, "Your Steps to a Successful Career." You may have a copy by writing John Robert Powers, c/o this newspaper, enclosing 10¢ and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Delivery in two weeks.

Community Goals For CUF Cited

Community goals for the 1961 County United Fund campaign have been announced by Duard H. Little, general chairman, following consultation with the chairmen for the various areas in the Allegany-Mineral County region.

The $361,231 goal of the 1961 Little said, calls for a concerted effort by the chairmen and team captains in the communities. He expressed confidence that this year's campaign will exceed the 1960 drive, both in the amount pledged and in total enrollment of givers.

The Cumberland Area goal has been set at $180,000, with the "Big Seven" industrial group asked to raise the second largest amount, $125,600.

Other goals are Keyser Area, $22,900; Frostburg Area, $14,600; Tri-Towns Area, $15,300; Central Creek Area, $2,110, and East County Area, $721.

Little said a breakdown of the campaign goal shows the quota for Golden Gifts to be $155,400; Classified, $190,600; Business, $13,550, and Community, $1,681.

In the Cumberland Area, the aim of the Golden Gifts Division is $122,000; for the Classified Division, $49,000, and Business, $9,000.

Division goals in the Keyser Area are Golden Gifts, $13,150; Classified, $8,000, and Business, $1,750. Tri-Towns Area goals are Golden Gifts, $11,100; Classified and Business, $3,900, and Community, $300.

Frostburg Area goals have been set as Golden Gifts, $8,500; Classified, $5,000; Business, $800, and Community, $300. Division goals in the Central Creek Area are Golden Gifts, $650; Classified and Business, $1,100, and Community, $360. The East County Area goal of $721 will be raised in a Community Division drive.

Bowling Green Man 'Sailor Of Month'

Thomas E. Alderman, a battery truck operator at Works 7 of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, has been chosen "Sailor of the Month" by officers of Naval Reserve Surface Division 5-9, it was announced by Cdr. Gerard P. Calhoun, commanding officer.

Alderman, aviation machinist's mate first class, who resides in Bowling Green, began his Naval service 10 years ago when he enlisted for four years active duty during the Korean War.

Alderman joined the local reserve division in 1956. He currently is a nominee for a commission as ensign permanent grade, now under study by review and selection boards.

County School Enrollment Hits 16,147

Up 245 Over Same Date In 1960

Allegany County public school enrollment, according to first week reports to Homer S. Higgins, supervisor of pupil personnel, stood at 16,147 an increase of 245 above the corresponding period a year ago.

The enrollment was 1.5 per cent above the 15,902 recorded in the opening report in September 1960.

Nearly half of the increase is in the two large high schools in Cumberland, both of which are over the 2,000 pupil level for the first time. Fort Hill High School remains the largest with 2,034 an increase of 40, but Allegany High School made a bigger gain, 75, to 2,020.

Fort Hill and Allegany, with a total enrollment of 4,054, have slightly more than 25 per cent of the total county enrollment.

Mr. Higgins pointed out that most of the increases are in Cumberland, LaVale and Cresaptown schools.

Both elementary schools in LaVale reported increases. Parkside School advanced 64, from 347 to 411. The LaVale School was up 14, from 245 to 259. Cresaptown Elementary School jumped 45, from 392 to 437, while the Cresaptown Junior High School enrollment was up 15 from 222 to 237.

Elementary schools in Cumberland which increased enrollment include Pennsylvania Avenue, up 36 to 565; Virginia Avenue, up 33 to 235; Mt. Royal, up 25 to 296.

Bruce High School in Westernport also reported a large increase in enrollment, up 43 to 813. Beall Elementary School in Frostburg had a boost of 18 to 422.

Allegany County has started on a $5,000,000 building program authorized by the General Assembly in Annapolis last winter. The first job, already underway, is an addition to Parkside School in LaVale. New junior high schools are planned for the Fort Hill Allegany areas to relieve the overcrowding there.

New Traffic Lights Added

Overhead traffic lights were installed over the weekend at two Baltimore Street intersections.

Workmen under the direction of Floyd G. Harper began the installation work about 1 a. m. Sunday at the intersection of Baltimore and George streets and stayed there until it was finished.

Yesterday afternoon they switched to Baltimore and Mechanic streets, and were virtually finished that job by 10:30 o'clock last night. Still to be installed were lights at Baltimore and Centre streets.

While the work was under way last night, traffic was diverted off North Mechanic Street onto Frederick Street and North Liberty Street.

There are two lights at each intersection extending from wires suspended from two large poles at opposite corners.

Still 'Very Critical'

Mrs. Ann Mann, 29, of RD 3, city, was reported still "very critical" late last night at Columbia Hospital, Wilkesburg, Pa., where she was transferred Friday from Bedford Memorial Hospital.

Students Begin Checking In

Frostburg State Teachers College freshman Thomas Fleming gets his room key from Mrs. Laura Waldrep, new supervisor for Allen Hall, as his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey E. Fleming, look on. About a third of the anticipated 1,200 students this year will be living in the residence halls. The others will be about equally divided between those who live at home and those who stay in private homes in Frostburg. Registration will be held at the college this week.

Eight Vehicles Crash In Fog On Turnpike

DONEGAL, Pa. (AP) — Eight vehicles piled up in heavy fog on the Pennsylvania Turnpike early Sunday, injuring four persons—one of them a pedestrian.

The crash about a half mile east of the Donegal Interchange involved four autos, two trucks, a Trailways Co. bus and a turnpike ambulance.

State Police said the chain-reaction collision was set off as Michael Dmitrow, 50, of Cleveland skidded across the highway and stopped.

Then Clyde E. Werner, 34, of Meyersdale, Pa., skidded and upset as he attempted to halt his truck.

The third vehicle, operated by Robert Rosenthal, 19, of Miami, Fla., swerved to miss the other two vehicles, and smashed against a guard fence.

A Trailways bus, carrying nine passengers, then crashed into the first two vehicles and a car driven by Bowie Henderson Jr., 33, of Capon Bridge, W. Va., then hit the bus.

An ambulance, halted to pick up the injured, was then struck by a tractor-trailer.

And finally, Edwin Cerutti, of Marion Station, Pa., attempting to cross the road, was struck by another car.

Deaths

Bartlett, Mrs. Arbutus, 39, former resident.

Benjamin, Miss Viola, 89, of RD 3, Bedford Road.

Carson, infant, of 826 Shriver Avenue.

Cowgill, Earl, 69, Paw Paw, W. Va.

Fazenbaker, Gilmore C., 75, of 811 Gephart Drive.

Long, Carl P., 65, Romney, W. Va.

Miller, Aaron M., 81, formerly of Mann's Choice, Pa.

Porter, George W., 86, Zihlman, Shirey, Harry L., 72, Cresaptown.

Whitman, James A., 41, of Locust Grove.

Buffalo Philharmonic Will Feature Concert Series

A concert next March 9 by the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra will highlight the five programs to be presented by the Tri-State Community Concert Association during its third and most successful season.

Last year five programs were presented and a sinfonietta, featuring 12 instrumentalists, was the largest instrumental group.

Season tickets for the 1961-62 season have just been distributed to members along with a form letter announcement from Herman I. Smith, association president.

The series opens on October 11 with a concert by Sarantae Endich, a soprano soloist. She distinguished herself as soprano soloist with the Cleveland and Boston symphony orchestras and the Goldovsky Opera Company.

"The Barber of Seville" in English will be presented by the Goldovsky Grand Opera Company in the second program on December 6.

Concert No. 3 is scheduled on January 16. On that occasion, Myra Kinch and a company of four will present a light fantastic dance review which is described in the letter as "absolutely riotous."

Theodore Lettvin, a piano soloist, will present the fourth program on February 19.

Finally will come the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra on March 9. Mr. Smith describes this orchestra as being ranked among the top ten in America. It is conducted by Joseph Krups, a native of Vienna.

Girl Scout Meeting Scheduled Tuesday

The West Side Neighborhood, Shawnee Council Girl Scouts, will hold its initial meeting of the season on Tuesday at 10 a. m. in the Girl Scout House on Greene Street.

Fall and winter activities will be discussed, Mrs. Richard Winer, chairman, announces. Troop consultant is Mrs. Gorman Getty and troop organizer is Mrs. A. J. Feigus.

Police Probe Possible Theft; Two Men Held

The detective bureau of the City Police Department is holding two men for questioning in connection with a possible burglary. Capt. James E. Van said last night.

A night or two ago, a watchman at the lumber yard near the city warehouse on North Lee Street told police he heard two men running down the railroad siding in that area, and they were carrying a metal box that rattled as if it contained money.

Upon investigation, police found the two men sitting along the tracks counting coins. They were taken into custody and are being questioned.

Yesterday, police combed the area and found some four or five dollars in coins and a small metal bank in weeds near where the two men had been seen.

Capt. Van said the metal box or bank is about six inches square, and on the back has a nameplate which reads "Merchants National Bank, Allentown, Pa." The box is gray in color and has been broken open.

No such theft has been reported to police, and Capt. Van said any one missing such a bank or box, should contact the department at once. He said it is the kind of bank which people might keep around the house for years in order to save coins, and anyone in this area who owned one should check to see if it is missing.

The police have been investigating a series of burglaries here for several weeks.

County Planners To Meet Tonight

The Allegany County Planning and Zoning Commission will have a special meeting at 8 o'clock tonight to adopt a formal resolution approving the proposed county interim zoning ordinance with amendments.

The commission chairman, Richard Winer, notified the Board of County Commissioners after the group's August 24 meeting that the ordinance was being recommended with a few relatively minor amendments.

Only question undecided at that last session was the regulation of mobile homes in residential areas of the county. Tonight's meeting will be the first for the commission since C. Lee Renaud assumed duties here September 1 as the county's first planning director.

After the formal resolution is adopted, the county commissioners will hold a public hearing on the interim zoning ordinance before its adoption.

Farm Control Act Needed, Demos Told

Young Democrats End Convention

CHESTERTOWN, Md. (AP)—A top official in the U. S. Department of Agriculture says the nation's farmers should take steps to control their economies.

"We are producing a surplus capable of filling the empty bellies of the people around the world," said Dr. James T. Ralph, assistant secretary for agricultural stabilization.

But the surplus would not be so large, he told the convention of the Maryland Young Democratic Club Saturday, if farmers would push legislation aimed at controlling production.

"Ninety-one per cent of the people in United States industry and labor have enabling acts giving them the right to control their own economies," Dr. Ralph said.

"Rather than change the 91 per cent as the farmers bureau suggests, the farmers or the other nine per cent should get on the band wagon, too."

Dr. Ralph was the principal speaker at a banquet marking the official close of the Young Democrats' annual two-day convention.

Candidates Attend

Several candidates for statewide office in next May's primary election—including gubernatorial candidate David Hume and U. S. Senate aspirants Del. Blair Lee III, D-Montgomery, and Rep. Daniel B. Brewster—attended the banquet.

Earlier Saturday, the 200 delegates approved resolutions which urged renewed efforts in reappointment of the Maryland legislature, and abolishment of racial discrimination in public places.

Reappointment should be undertaken "on the basis of population according to each federal census," the resolution said.

The delegates called for the outright prohibition of "discrimination in places of public accommodations," and cited recent incidents in which African diplomats were refused service in Maryland restaurants.

Other resolutions called for the: 1. Abolishment of slot machines and gambling now legal in some Maryland counties.

2. Repeal of the unit vote system used in Maryland's primary elections, and adoption of popular vote method of electing government officials.

3. Governor to call a constitutional convention in 1962 to update the state constitution which has remained unchanged since 1867.

4. Revision of the 1961 General Assembly's congressional redistricting act to establish districts of approximately equal population.

5. Expansion of teachers colleges to a scale comparable to the University of Maryland, and hiring of faculty members with qualifications and responsibilities equal to those of university personnel.

Other Resolutions

6. Adoption of an "absolute standard" of at least two years university training for public school teachers.

7. Expansion of junior and community colleges, financed through matching state and county funds.

8. Adoption of a graduated state income tax patterned after that of the federal government.

9. Exemption of fallout shelter construction costs from state taxes.

10. Strict enforcement of laws affecting migratory farm laborers "in regard to wages, education and living conditions."

11. Rejection by the public of a bill approved by the 1961 legislature which would tighten eligibility requirements for unemployment compensation.

A referendum drive conducted by labor interests earlier this year forced the unemployment compensation measure to a statewide vote in the 1962 general election. The bill was termed "anti-labor" by the convention.

Also approved were resolutions which endorsed President Kennedy's aid to education, medical aid for the aged and Peace Corps programs.

MRS. RONNA LEHMAN

Takes Position As Teacher At Columbia St.

Mrs. Ronna Friedman Lehman, 413 Piedmont Avenue, is a new teacher at Columbia Street School, according to Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster.

She fills the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Roma Carpenter Preman, the third grade teacher last year, who has moved to Florida.

Mrs. Lehman was graduated from the University of Pittsburgh in 1960. She previously studied at Chatham College in Pittsburgh. She taught five months at the Dilworth School in Pittsburgh before moving to Cumberland, where her husband is employed at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory.

Three Champs Declared In Chess Tourney

Dave Hoereth, who likes to play chess by mail, won the men's senior division championship in a tournament held by the Cumberland Chess Club during the weekend at Central YMCA. He won four matches and tied twice.

Don Becker, Allegany High School sophomore who also is a postal chess player, won the junior division championship with five wins and one tie.

Mrs. Vivian McGreevy, who has been playing only two years, won the women's championship with three wins and a loss.

Hugo H. Fickenscher and James Lutton won brilliancy prizes for their skill, and Bill Clark, who will represent the Marine Corps in the forthcoming armed forces championship, won the prize for the best-played game, even though he was unable to complete his schedule because he had to return to duty at Quantico, Va.

John Yotko, who investigated, reported that two horses in the van were slightly injured as was the truck driver, Kenneth D. Bouchard, 30, of 4221 Palm Lane, Bay Point, Fla. Property damage amounted to about $2,100.

Mr. Bouchard was treated at the Bedford (Pa.) Memorial Hospital and a veterinarian treated the horses.

State police said the horses were coming from Brandywine, Pa. They are owned by the Del Mar (Calif.) Race Track, according to the information furnished police.

Remonstrance Filed Against Beer License

Because a remonstrance signed by 110 adults was filed yesterday with the Allegany County Board of Alcoholic Beverages License Commissioners, a hearing will be necessary on the a Class D beer license in premises application of Caroline Hann for at 118 West Oldtown Road.

Mrs. Hann holds a beer license for premises at 236 West Oldtown Road but must vacate those premises. The signers pointed out that a snack bar had been operated at 118 West Oldtown Road and they want such a business to continue there. Most of the signers live in the Fort Cumberland Homes housing project.

A hearing will be held by the liquor board at its next meeting at 10 a. m. Wednesday, September 20. All persons opposed and in favor of the license will be requested to attend the hearing.

Radiation Course Set For Firemen

Allegany-Garrett Unit To Incorporate

A five-week course on radiation will begin today at 7:30 p. m. at Frostburg Volunteer Fire Company, according to an announcement at yesterday's meeting of the Allegany-Garrett Volunteer Firemen's Association at Friendsville.

An instructor from Fire Service Extension of the University of Maryland will conduct the course, which is open to all members.

Nine past presidents and five officers attended the meeting with 21 departments of the 31 in the association represented.

An oyster feed is planned by the firemen December 10. Any department which would like to hold the feed at its hall should contact Alvin Rankin, Frostburg, chairman.

The Barton Hose Company wrote the association concerning the water survey being made of the Savage River Dam to Cumberland and requested its cooperation in having a survey made of Georges Creek area. Mr. Rankin, who is a member of Allegany County Sewage Commission, informed the group that the survey being made includes the Georges Creek area.

Announcement was made that the association would file articles of incorporation and will be known as Allegany Garrett Volunteer Fire Association Inc.

The association will write an article to be included in a booklet on Allegany County which is being compiled by the county board of commissioners. The public relations committee with William A. Wilson, Midland, chairman, Francis Fatkin, Clarysville, and David E. Kirk, Bowling Green, will be assisted by Alvin Rankin, Frostburg, Cromwell Zembower, LaVale, and Jack Eichhorn, Lonaconing.

A memorial service was held for Charles Walters, Corriagville, a past president of the association, Millard Reed, Ellerslie, and Cecil Larue, Grantsville.

The Ladies auxiliary of the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Company, served a dinner following the meeting.

Horses Slightly Injured As Van Overturns

Wins Blue Ribbons

Edward Ott, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ott Jr., Death Valley Road, near Wiley Ford, is shown with his six-month-old Holstein calf which was adjudged the grand champion in 4-H competition at the recent West Virginia State Fair near Lewisburg. His calf was adjudged first in class, first in open class, first in 4-H competition and grand champion. Young Ott, who is a Ridgeley High School senior belongs to the Allegany County 4-H Calf Club and exhibited the calf at the Cumberland Fair before going to Lewisburg. What is unusual about Edward is that he really is not a farm boy. Although the Ott's live in a rural area off State Route 28 they do not live on a farm. The boy keeps his calf on a lot near his home. He purchased her from Ira L. Brooke of Pinto.
